Obregon Will Not Accept Recognition That Endangers His Sovereignty.

New York—Mexico will accept recognition by the United States only on a basis which will not effect her sovereignty, President Alvaro Obregon declared Friday in an exclusive statement cabled to the United Press.

The Mexican leader added that a treaty is not necessary for his country to recognize her international obligations and that she neither evades nor will evade any of the obligations which are hers as an independent nation.

His statement follows:
"Replying to your telegram of Thursday relative to a story published by the press to the effect that the government of your country may demand signature of a protocol preliminary to granting recognition to the Mexican government, it is my opinion that a treaty should not exist previous to recognition since the rights and obligations of Mexico, like those of all other countries, are established with regard for international law and that there is no necessity for a treaty in order that Mexico should recognize those obligations, or establish them anew.

Mexico believes that she has the right to be considered as any other nation which are subject to the rules of international law. The United States of America like any other country, may ask for the nationals all that international law confers without the necessity that they should be ratified in a protocol and Mexico neither evades nor will evade in any way whatsoever any of the obligations which are hers as an independent nation.

"Moreover Mexico does not demand renewal of friendly relations with those nations which still doubt the stability of her government and her firm resolve to comply with all her obligations; and those countries may take all the time that their forethought and interest warrant for the renewal of relations when they may believe it convenient.

"I am certain that the high personalities who now administer your country, interpreting the noble desires for harmony which are being strengthened with the passing of each day, will avoid renewal of relations between both nations on a basis which in any way affects the rights and sovereignty of the Mexican people, this is the only condition under which the government of this republic desires renewal of relations with those countries where they are at present interrupted."

Madison—Sherman E. Smalley, recently elected circuit judge of the fifth circuit, Miss Ada James, well known suffragist, and Pearl L. Lincoln, attorney, were formally accused of violating the corrupt practices act in a complaint filed Friday by G. H. Clifford, special counsel appointed by Attorney General William J. Morgan to investigate.

The complaint alleged that Smalley knowingly caused to be published both in person and through his campaign committee and agents false statements about Judge Levi H. Rickenbacker.

10-YEAR SENTENCES FOR HIGHWAY ROBBERS
By United Press Leased Wire
Eau Claire, Wis.—Ten years in prison was the sentence given Friday by Judge Wickham in circuit court here when Frank Carter, 26, Sawyer county farmer, pleaded guilty before him to a charge of highway robbery.

Carter, with his brother, Walter Carter, 19, and Leonard Crye, 20, on May 5, held up a Sawyer county farmer at the point of a shotgun, but were driven away by another farmer who happened along at that time and opened fire on them with a revolver. The younger Carter and Crye are now under sentence at Green Bay reformatory, the former for four years and the latter for three.

NOMAHA, Neb.—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, who was forced to abandon his one-stop transcontinental flight when his plane crashed at Cheyenne last night, arrived here as a passenger on a regular air mail plane at 11:50 a. m. Friday.

Rickenbacker will leave on the regular eastbound plane at 1:30 p. m. This plane will be piloted by pilot Hopson. The next stop is Iowa City, Iowa.

MEXICAN SITUATION REGARDED SERIOUS

Washington, D. C.—The Mexican situation was considered "most serious" by the American government here Friday.

The statement of President Obregon to the United Press, indicating that he would refuse to sign written guarantees as the only way to secure Mexican recognition, was received at the state department here Friday and read with interest.

After Obregon's statement had been examined, the United Press learned on good authority that this government is now greatly worried over the successful conclusion of the negotiations that are about to begin at Mexico City between General Obregon and George T. Sumnerlin, counselor of the American embassy in that capital on the question of American recognition.

Obregon, it is believed here, has been prompted to adopt this attitude because of his own particular shaky position as head of the Mexican government. Mexican leaders are constantly faced with being the subject of the cry from the Mexican people of "bowing to the dictates of America" if they are too conciliatory in dealings with the United States.

With bolshevist elements in Mexico ready to seize upon any opportunity to foment revolt with disgruntled Carranza chieftains ominously in the background, the situation is serious for Obregon.

"KISSING BLONDE" IS SLAYER'S FRIEND

Woman and Rival for Man's Affections Weep on Each Other's Shoulders.

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—The "kissing blonde" in the Zeigler murder case, was brought face-to-face here Friday with Mrs. Cora Orthwein, who stands accused of the slaying of Herbert P. Zeigler.

Mrs. Charlotte Lewinsky was in company with Zeigler the night before the shooting, but efforts by police to locate her failed until Friday. She was known only as the "kissing blonde."

Because of jealousy over his attentions to the "kissing blonde," Mrs. Orthwein is alleged by prosecuting attorneys to have killed the high salaried manager of the Goodyear Rubber company.

Mrs. Orthwein met the "kissing blonde" in a downtown hotel. Both women stared at each other momentarily, then rushed into a close embrace and wept.

Mrs. Lewinsky admitted she was in Zeigler's company the night before the shooting. She remained in an auto outside a cafe while Zeigler was inside.

Mrs. Lewinsky said she didn't want to go in with Zeigler because he was "so intoxicated." She denied that she didn't go inside because she knew Mrs. Orthwein was in the cafe and was afraid she might stir up "a fuss" because she was in Zeigler's company.

It was after the party broke up that Zeigler went to the Orthwein flat. Mrs. Orthwein said he tried to break in and she shot him. Authorities declared the shooting followed a jealous quarrel over the "kissing blonde."

JILTED GIRL TAKES ACID TO END LIFE

Chicago.—A love affair of youth Friday ended in the death of Marie Carr, 20 years old.

Miss Carr followed Harold Hanahan, 21, home early Friday and swallowed acid on his doorstep after he told her it was impossible for them to become reengaged.

The engagement of the two was broken off by Hanahan several months ago, according to police, who said the girl has been phoning him repeatedly recently, demanding a reconciliation.

Hanahan consented to a farewell meeting Thursday night. He took her home and then she followed him to his house.

"If you don't want me, then I am through with life," the girl screamed, swallowing the acid.

New York—Further price reduction may be necessary before normal conditions in the steel industry are restored, Judge Elbert Gary declared Friday in an address before the American Iron and Steel Institute here.

With a few exceptions, he said it would be unjust to reduce wages further until living costs were brought down.

"So far as practicable," he said, "all prices and wages should be reduced at about the same time, so that all interested might be justly treated."

The American people at present are not buying enough to supply themselves with the ordinary comforts of life, Gary declared, although they have the means to do so.

Charge Money Collected From War Veterans Is Stolen by Collectors.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Investigation of charges that several so-called service men's organizations are collecting large sums of money for private gain under the guise of helping veterans was started Friday by the house rules committee. The charges that some of these organizations are "get rich quick" schemes for promoters were made by Representative Royal Johnson, South Dakota, himself a veteran.

A resolution presented to the committee by Johnson names four organizations.

"There are many organizations in the United States collecting and attempting to collect vast sums of money from the public at large to be used for the relief of disabled soldiers for the purpose of influencing congress in the passage or rejection of legislation affecting service men," Johnson said.

"Charges are made and there is reason to believe that much of the money collected to influence legislation is collected surreptitiously and without the knowledge of members of congress and the general public; that such money is being collected and used and that large sums of money purported to be collected for the relief of disabled ex-service men are being diverted from their original and lawful purposes."

Indianapolis.—Frank H. Wheeler, 57, millionaire, blew off the top of his head with a shotgun at his palatial Riverside home early Friday.

The bullet found the body in a bathroom. Physicians had been doctoring him for diabetes and it was said ill health caused him to take his own life.

Wheeler was president of the Wheeler-Schoeber Carburetor company, president of the Langsenkamp-Wheeler Brass company and he had other financial connections. He was one of the organizers of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway company.

The Wheeler home is on west Riverside drive, one of the show places of Indianapolis. It overlooks Riverside park and the boulevard is commonly termed "Millionaires' Row."

One son and the widow survive.

Washington.—The nonpartisan block of senators with agricultural interests comprising one-fourth of the membership of the senate will meet next Friday to perfect the program of farmer legislation, it was learned Friday.

The Norris bill to regulate the packing industry is first on the program. It has been reported to the senate and will be pressed for passage when the naval and army bills are out of the way.

Next will come the Tincher-Capper anti-gambling bill. This bill has already passed the house by a vote of 269 to 69 and is now before the senate agricultural committee which has been urged by the group to begin work on the measure at once.

The Capper "truth in fabric" bill designed to aid the sheep and wool industry and protect the public from buying shoddy goods sold at profiteering prices, follows in the tentative schedule of the group. This measure has the endorsement of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and many farmer organizations.

SENATE IS READY TO PASS BIG NAVY BILL
By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—The senate was ready to pass the $500,000,000 navy bill Friday after further protests had been voiced against its huge appropriations increased $100,000,000 over the house version.

Senator King intended to make a final appeal for reduction in the allowances for the completion of the 1916 building program of battleships and other craft.

He had a batch of amendments ready all of which he expected to be summarily rejected.

ASSEMBLY PASSES LIQUOR LAW BACK TO GOV. BLAINE

Refuses Governor's Request to Recall Matheson Bill for Amendments.

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison—The assembly Friday refused to recall the Matheson prohibition enforcement bill from the office of the governor at Governor Blaine's request by a vote of 33 to 31.

This action forces the governor either to approve, veto or allow the Matheson bill to become a law without his approval.

He has until Tuesday night to veto the measure.

Motion to reject the resolution came in the form of a motion made by Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, author of the bill, to defer action until next Wednesday.

"I want to consider this message," said Matheson, referring to the governor's communication.

"Action as suggested by the gentleman from Rock (Matheson) means one of two things," replied John Dahl, administration floor leader.

"The governor has until Tuesday to either sign or veto this bill."

"I don't want this house to misunderstand the effect of my motion," said Matheson.

"If the bill is a better one than the Mulberger law, the governor can sign it. If he does not think so, he can veto it. My motion would compel Governor Blaine to sign or veto in the interim."

"I have seen the lobbyists of this bill active all morning," said Herman Sackner, Madison, administration leader.

"If you want to put the governor in the hole, all well and good. You don't have to adopt the amendments he suggests if you don't want to."

Governor Blaine refused to make any comment on the action of the assembly, which, after refusing to recall the bill, voted to adjourn until 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

The impression prevails that the governor will allow the bill to become a law without his approval but many predict he will veto it because of the objections raised to the measure in his message.

HARDING AIDES DISCUSS PLANS TO BOOM TRADE

Stimulation of Export Trade Regarded as America's Greatest Need.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—Ways of reviving industry and agriculture were up for consideration by President Harding and his cabinet Friday.

Among the possible moves under consideration are:

Action to boost American export trade, which is now only half that of a year ago.

Legislation to make easier credit for the farmer.

Bringing about a closer relationship between wholesale and retail prices.

The stimulation of America's export trade is considered by Harding and his advisers to be the foremost need in winning an economic revival.

This was the principal subject discussed between Harding, Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon with leading American bankers with whom they dined at the White House Wednesday night.

Most Help Farmer
Relief to the farmer, it is generally agreed among cabinet members, calls for some legislation. Under present conditions banks can loan on crops and livestock for a period not exceeding six months.

With a rapid fall in prices of their products farmers could not arrange to meet loans in this period, leaving many in bad financial straits with their borrowing power gone.

Secretary of Treasury Mellon favors making two years the maximum for loans to farmers and livestock raisers, giving them a longer period to put their affairs in order.

The cutting of retail prices, Harding and his cabinet believes, cannot be accomplished by legislation. In all speeches of the president and his cabinet officers, however, there has been the recurrent statement that retail prices must fall. It is the hope of the officials that the constant suggestion will work on the retailers and induce the consumer to demand lower prices.

EUROPE AGAIN IS ON ROAD TO PEACE

French Deputies Give Rousing Vote of Confidence to Premier Briand.

By United Press Leased Wire
Paris.—With the allies once more in accord Friday, Europe was nearing peace.

Developments pointing to a return to normal included:

Notice from Germany that reparations due by May 21 will be sent from Berlin Saturday. The French chambers vote of confidence in Premier Briand by 403 to 163 for his handling of reparations and 390 to 162 for his policy in regard to Silesia.

The dispatch of six British battalions to Silesia and reports from that region that the allies are restoring order.

A report from Rome that Foreign Minister Sforza is working on a plan of partition for Silesia which should be satisfactory to both Great Britain and France.

It appeared Friday that the allied supreme council will meet at Boulogne June 3. Premier Briand of course, will represent France. It was expected that he would make a strong fight to secure award giving Poland a generous slice of Upper Silesia.

FATHER FORCES SON TO BE HIS MURDERER

By United Press Leased Wire
Greensburg, Ind.—Walter Tremain placed the muzzle of a 12 gauge shotgun against his breast and forced his five-year-old son to pull the trigger at nine o'clock Friday. Death was instantaneous.

The shooting took place at the Tremain farm two miles northwest of Adams, a village six miles west of here.

Tremain was well known in the community in which he lived, and was of a prominent family.

It was said Tremain was despondent. He sat down on a kitchen chair, placed the muzzle of the gun near his heart and called the boy to him. He then told the boy to pull the trigger.

WANT QUICK ACTION ON NEW WAGE PLAN

London—Premier Lloyd George Friday called on striking British coal miners to reach a quick decision on a wage proposal he made them this forenoon. The premier suggested that the miners agree to the principle of a gradual reduction of wages to an "economic level."

To keep the wages from dropping too far at the start, he offered to guarantee a government subsidy of ten million pounds. It was understood the mine owners agreed to forego their profits temporarily.

Lloyd George informed the miners that he would meet them at 3:30 p. m. when he hoped they would have a favorable answer. He expected a conference with the colliery owners at six p. m.

Hardest Problems Are Still Waiting Solution

BRITISH NAVAL LEADERS HAPPY OVER U. S. MOVE

First Lord of Admiralty Praises Resolution Adopted by Senate.

London—Great Britain rejoices over the action of the United States senate in empowering the president to call a disarmament conference of the powers, according to Britain's highest naval authority—Lord Lee of Fareham, first lord of the admiralty.

Lord Lee was believed to have struck the keynote of Britain's reaction to the senate's passage of the disarmament resolution when he spoke Thursday night at the Japan society's dinner to the crown prince of Japan.

Speaking directly at the Impassive Prince Hirohito, Lord Lee declared that Japan too, has recognized the universal cry for limitation of armaments. Japan has shown her courage, he said, by quickly agreeing to reduce her sea strength if the other powers agree to a program.

At the foreign office there was great interest in the senate's resolution as reported in the press. There was no official notice regarding the resolution or of the president's intentions in calling a conference.

The London press comment was favorable.

ASSEMBLY PASSES RETIREMENT BILL

Madison—The assembly passed the teachers' retirement pension fund bill Friday by a vote of 59 to 8. The measure carries with it a surtax rider, estimated to raise more than $2,000,000 based on income taxes received in 1919.

Attorney General Morgan has been asked to give an opinion on the validity of the surtax feature.

Senator Barney Morgan Friday moved consideration of the Huber unemployment bill and the senate made the measure a special order of business for next Wednesday. A conference of senators resulted in an agreement to amend the bill, striking from the list of industries effected those doing seasonal work. The bill, the first of its kind ever seriously considered by an American legislature, probably will pass in amended form.

The senate passed the women's rights bill, amending it to deny women freedom to contract, but giving them all other rights.

All northern Iowa was hit by a severe storm.

Two men from Garner were drowned at Clear Lake while out in a boat. Hundreds of farm buildings were reported destroyed.

While on her way home from downtown Thursday, Mrs. George L. Loon turned her ankle in front of John Goodland's residence and in falling to the sidewalk injured herself quite severely. At present she is confined to her home.

Borah's Disarmament Resolution Does Not Change Harding's Attitude.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington.—President Harding will name former President Taft as chief justice of the United States. That is his present intention as disclosed by those who have discussed the matter with him.

Mr. Harding is not likely to delay an announcement. The more time elapses the more candidates appear and the more hours must be given to the consideration of appeals from friends of the candidates.

Mr. Harding is having enough troubles filling important positions without adding to his cares. He has yet to find a chairman of the shipping board. He has yet to name an ambassador to Japan. He has dozens of appointments to make.

Should congress create a department of welfare, there are many candidates for that job, but it is coming to be understood that Brig. Gen. Sawyer, the president's physician, in whom he has the utmost confidence, will be named for that place.

Aside from appointments, the president finds himself with a complex situation in Congress. The biggest jobs are still undone—making a permanent tariff and enacting a new tax law. He feels relieved that the senate hasn't crippled the American navy by reducing the personnel and though it is disquieting to see the Republican ranks divided so early in the game, it is nevertheless comforting for the president that the Democrats did not see fit to be petty partisans, but contributed fourteen votes—sufficient to save the navy program from defeat.

The unanimity with which Senator Borah's proposal that the president call a disarmament conference was passed by the senate may be perplexing to the outsider who recalls that the Borah measure met at first with determined opposition which later melted away.

The answer is that with the outcry for disarmament as a means of reducing taxation, the administration saw no reason for opposing a mere request for a disarmament conference. It was feared that if some concession were not made to the advocates of a disarmament conference, they might go further and actually to secure the passage of legislation which did reduce American armament even in advance of action by other powers. The Democrats, of course, voted for the Borah measure because it is identical with a paragraph inserted by Representative Borah in a naval appropriation bill passed under the Wilson administration whereby the president was authorized to call a disarmament conference. There is nothing in the old statute or the new law which compels the president to call a conference of powers to discuss disarmament. It merely requests that he do so and gives him the necessary authority to spend money for the expense of such a conference.

The time of the conference is left to Mr. Harding's discretion. That makes the Borah proposal harmless from the viewpoint of interfering with the freedom of the executive and that's why when the administration forces began to analyze the true value of the Borah amendment it was decided that fighting energy might be reserved for another and more worth while occasion. Meanwhile the defeat of Borah's suggestion that the personnel strength of the navy be cut down indicates clearly that the administration will be able to get through the present session of congress at least without serious injury being done to the American navy as a first line of defense.

REDA RIOTERS SHOOT UP MEXICAN TOWN

By United Press Leased Wire
Mexico City.—Federal troops were rushed to Jacoma, Michoacan, Friday to suppress savage rioters, who have killed the chief of police, two councilmen and a number of private citizens. Two judges narrowly escaped assassination on the bench.

The rioters were radicals headed by Benjamin Guerra and the attack was directed principally against the Catholic church. They ran up a red flag, then they charged the church, firing through the doorway and creating a panic among worshippers.

The band marched into the city behind a red flag shouting "Long live the soviet republic." "Long live Governor Mugica."

SEIZE MONEY IN BANKS
Bergdoll's Mother Ordered to Prepare Statement of Son's Finances.

By United Press Leased Wire
Philadelphia, Pa.—The entire property of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire draft dodger, was seized by the United States government here Friday.

Colonel Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian of the United States, arrived in Philadelphia and personally made the seizure by direction of President Harding and under the authority of the "trading with the enemy act."

Colonel Miller arrived in Philadelphia from Chicago and was met by Maj. Vincent A. Carroll his personal attorney, at North Philadelphia station. Miller and Carroll then got in touch with the United States attorney and the United States marshal who had previously received instructions from the attorney general as to the contemplated action by the government.

Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, who recently testified before the house committee investigating the escape of her son and who testified that she held a power of attorney for him, was sent for by the United States marshal and was there examined by Colonel Miller and Maj. Carroll as to her holdings.

Mrs. Bergdoll was immediately served with a formal demand to make a detailed report of all the holdings of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll and was notified that all of the estate of Grover in Philadelphia which includes the Bergdoll castle at 52nd and Wynnsfield avenue, would be taken over by the alien property custodian and would be administered by that office.

Miller and Carroll then went to the several banks where Bergdoll's funds are deposited and served similar demands on the presidents to those in situation. When it was learned at the banks that funds belonging to Grover were deposited in the name of Emma C. Bergdoll, the presidents of the institutions were directed to sequester all deposits in Mrs. Bergdoll's name until the interest of Grover Bergdoll in the deposits can be ascertained.

The banks where the Bergdoll funds are deposited are the Peoples Trust company, Northwestern National bank, Real Estate Title and Trust company and Drexel and company.

An attachment on all of the slackers' holdings in the Bergdoll Brewing company plant was also made by Miller. All mortgages to Grover Bergdoll and the tenants in his properties will be served likewise, Miller announced.

The Bergdoll properties will be taken over by Major Carroll and administered by him for the alien property custodian. Any money will be turned into the treasury of the United States with other property of alien enemies that was seized in the early part of the war. Colonel Miller said.

This has been the first seizure since June, 1919.

BIDDING IS BRISK AT HOLSTEIN SALE FRIDAY MORNING

Opening Is Delayed More Than an Hour by Sudden Rainfall.

Nic Paltzer of Appleton had the distinction of owning and raising the first animal sold at the first annual consignment sale of the Holstein Country Holstein Breeder's association Friday morning. It was a three months old calf and was purchased by August Wirtz of Greenville for $130. The sale opened at 11.30 a. m. and the bidding was brisk. Several heads were disposed of before an adjournment was taken for dinner.

The sale was to have started at 10 o'clock, but was delayed by threatening weather. It is being held in a tent which was crowded when the first animal was brought into the ring. Paul O. Neuhus, a member of the sales committee, announced that at a meeting at 9 o'clock Friday morning the consignors agreed to take notes on purchasers in Outagamie, Winnebago and Calumet counties who were not in position to pay cash. The notes were to run for six months at 7 per cent.

Reid P. Murray, in the box, and J. E. Mack, auctioneer, addressed the assembly briefly before the sale opened. The auctioneer complimented the consignors on the fine cattle they were offering and said their equal could not be found in the state. Each head would be credited to a state sale, he said. The audience was composed of women as well as men. Camp chairs were used for seats and staked into the soft earth which showed the effects of the downpour of rain the night previous. In order to accommodate the crowd the sides of the tent were removed which made it possible for many buyers to see, hear and bid at long range.

The sales ring or platform was located on the east side of the tent and was elevated about two feet. The cattle were lined up outside of the tent and as soon as they were sold another took its place. They were practically all Holsteins. The cattle consisted of 57 head, were housed in a cabbage warehouse near the rear of the tent, where the majority of them had been cared for for several days. Each animal was groomed as fine as a race horse. It was evident from the bidding on the first few animals that high prices were to prevail. The sale reopened at one o'clock.

YOUNGEST VETERAN IS 11 YEARS OLD

By E. M. Thierry
(Special to Post-Crescent)
New York—So many boy stories about "the youngest veteran of the World War" have been printed that I asked the American Legion to settle officially just who is the youngest.

Here is the answer: Sergeant Bernie L. Woolley, of Salt Lake City. Sergeant Woolley is eleven years old! An exhaustive investigation covering eight weeks was carried on by the American Legion.

The records of many youthful vets were examined. For a time a 14-year-old soldier at Fort Riley, Kansas, was believed to have the laurels. But the investigation disclosed that young Woolley was officially enlisted in the United States Marine Corps when he was 7. He was recently honorably discharged in Salt Lake City after 4 years and 3 days of active service.

When Sergeant Woolley's four brothers went to the recruiting station a week after America entered the war, Bernie accompanied them. He made such an impassioned appeal to be allowed to "take on" with his brothers that a compromise was reached and he was permitted to enlist in the recruiting division.

The name of Bernie L. Woolley went on the regular records. In 1920 a shift was made and he was ordered to Denver for duty. Later he was stationed at San Francisco marine headquarters.

In the meantime the boy had gained two stripes as a corporal over his original rating as a private, and later he got three stripes as a sergeant. Now, following his honorable discharge, he is seeking admission to the American Legion.

Sergeant Woolley's discharge certificate shows that he is responsible for more than 200 men joining the marines.

CONFERENCE IS TO TAKE UP CITY PLAN

Meeting Arranged for by Chamber of Commerce Directors.
Favor Buying Park.

Carrying out its previous decision to make city planning the big task for the coming year, directors of the chamber of commerce made arrangements at their meeting in the French room of the Sherman house Thursday evening for a dinner to be held in Elk hall June 3, to which representatives of all civic, fraternal and other organizations will be invited.

Prof. Leonard Smith, instructor in city planning at the University of Wisconsin, has been engaged to address the meeting, explaining city planning and how to obtain and organize a city planning commission. Prof. Smith has spoken in Appleton before and is considered an authority on this subject. He is perhaps the only Wisconsin man who has made an extensive study of city planning.

Purchase of Pierce park. Second-it was discussed thoroughly and the directors voted in favor of acquiring this property for the use of the public. The community welfare committee has had the matter under consideration and explained the advantages of having this land owned by the city. It has been shown that Appleton has less park acreage than many cities of the same size, and that it was best to obtain the site while it was to be had.

FIND MORE THAN 4,000 HOMES HERE

Census Taken by Postoffice Shows Interesting Facts and Conditions.

With the assistance of mail carriers, John A. Letter, superintendent of mails at the postoffice has compiled a census of Appleton showing that the city has more than 4,000 homes and 551 stores and offices. Appleton also has said goodbye to wooden sidewalks. Every street that has any walks at all has them made of concrete or some other substantial material.

An earlier survey indicated that there were only five houses empty in Appleton. The shortage has grown worse by one, for in the new check-up it is found that there are only four. Houses are rented so quickly that these probably are occupied by now, leaving the city's house famine as acute as ever.

Census of the number of residences was taken in the territory served by city carriers, omitting Spencer-st. west of Outagamie and the outlying portions of DeForest-ave., State-rd., Richmond-st., Newberry-st., and Second-ave. east of Calmes corners. The actual number of residences within the prescribed area was 3,892. There were 286 apartments or flats housing more than one family. A total of 300 stores and 251 offices is served.

Excellent cooperation with the post-office has been shown by the patrons. Almost every mail box has been placed where it is of easy access to the carrier. A movement to accomplish this was started several years ago. Now that carriers do not have to climb steps and stairways or go to the side of houses not less than ten hours' time is saved by the 13 mailmen each day, averaging almost an hour to each man. Carriers now cover their routes within their allotted time and give their patrons better service. Sidewalks and road conditions also were never better than at present. Time also has been saved in the Fourth ward, where mail boxes have been mounted on posts on the road so the carrier did not have to leave his wagon to make deliveries.

CAMPERS ARE AUTOING TO NORTHERN COUNTRY

Campers and tourists are not waiting for the real vacation months before seeking the outdoor life of the north. It is becoming a common occurrence in Appleton again to see a number of cars, many from neighboring states, passing through the city loaded with baggage, tents and fishing equipment. Many families are staying overnight at local hotels.

One outfit that attracted attention here was a Ford touring car using a rowboat as a trailer. The boat was mounted on a 2-wheeled truck and firmly fastened behind the automobile. This proved a simple way of carrying a boat as part of the camp equipment and also afforded a roomy place in which to store tents.

APPLETON MAN WINS $500 FOR SOLVING PUZZLE

John M. Hodges, 731 Franklin-st., is sporting $500 which he earned easier than any other sum of money which has ever come to him. Mr. Hodges received the money from the Laymore Egg Co. for solving an "S" puzzle which the company used to advertise its product. He won second prize in the contest. First prize was $1,000.

THREE STREETS CLOSED • TO CARS ON MEMORIAL DAY

In order to prevent congestion on streets which will be used for assembling divisions to participate in the Memorial day parade, Chief of Police George T. Prim has requested automobile owners to keep their machines off the following streets from noon on Monday until after the parade:

College-ave. from Union to Oneda-st.; Park-ave. and Union-st., from College-ave. to Washington-st. Policemen will be stationed on these streets to see that this order is enforced. The action was taken in order to prevent accidents.

WANT REALTORS AT NATIONAL MEET

Real estate brokers of Appleton and other Wisconsin cities have received letters from Thomas B. Peterman, Curtiss, urging attendance at the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in Chicago July 12 to 15. Five floors of the Morrison hotel have been engaged by the Badger delegation and reservations are expected to reach Mr. Peterman by the hundreds.

Chicago realtors expect to spend $75,000 for entertainment features. The total attendance is estimated at 10,000. On the opening night there will be a reception at municipal pier, with fireworks display and a boatride on the lake. All women and children accompanying realtors are to be entertained in elaborate manner at the South Shore Country club.

One of the days will be devoted to a trip to Great Lakes naval training station, where reviews and drills will be given by sailors, boxing bouts and other athletic exhibitions staged and a barbecue held.

FARMER CHARGED WITH LARCENY OF LUMBER

Steve Wagl, charged with grand larceny, had his examination in municipal court Thursday afternoon. He was arrested at Cudahy and was brought to Appleton a week ago by Undersheriff Earl Schwartz and lodged in the county jail. Wagl is alleged to have temporarily rented certain property in the town of Maine and to have hauled away and disposed of a quantity of lumber upon vacating the premises.

STILL BUILDING AT TELULAH MILL

Tail Race Is Extended and Other Minor Changes Are Being Made.

Fox River Paper Co., which recently purchased the Telulah paper mill from Kimberly-Clark Co. is still making extensive improvements to its newly acquired property. A new flume has just been put in and attention is now being given to the tail-race on the east side of which a concrete wall is being erected about six feet above the level of the ground.

A shipping platform has been built on the south side of the mill and the sidetrack changed to conform with it. All the material taken out of the mill was used as filling in the street immediately south of the mill, a portion of which extended into the river. About the only work that remains to be done is to put the finishing touches on the new rag room addition which was built on the east end of the mill. The plant is now connected up so that it can be operated either by water or electricity. Practically all of the machinery is in place and ready for operation. The plant will not start up, however, until business conditions warrant it.

Change Pay Ruling

LET HUGHES DO IT

According to Ambassador Harvey, who seems to be enunciating American policy on his own responsibility and without consultation with Washington, the United States did not care a rap about humanity, saving civilization, making the world safe for democracy, or anything but the serving of its selfish interests when it joined in the war against the central powers. President Harding, in one of his addresses in New York this week, declared that we "never were, never will be able to maintain isolation," that "our rise in power and influence has imposed new responsibilities," which we are to discharge through "our ability to extend credit which others cannot give but which brave and unfortunate peoples sorely need." This, he added, was not selfish, and all we ask is "that which is rightfully our own," meaning, we take it, a reasonable rate of interest on our loans to Europe and sufficient collateral to protect them from losses. Mr. Harvey's and Mr. Harding's speeches appear to agree in this, that American leadership is to be commercial rather than moral or political. For ourselves we prefer to believe that the United States permanently, and in the present crisis of civilization particularly, stands for something more than a line of credit to nations that are dependent upon it for money.

Mr. Harvey says the United States cannot "by hook or crook" be "beguiled" into entering the League of Nations, and that our present government "will not have anything whatsoever to do with the League, or with any commission or committee appointed by it or responsible to it, directly or indirectly, openly or furtively." His intemperate language carries with it the necessary inference that the League of Nations, which forty-eight countries have joined and in which the government to which he is accredited has prominent place, is a disreputable organization that would defile this nation by mere contact, and that not only the British government but Secretary Hughes, Elihu Root and Mr. Taft have been working "furtively" to drag the United States into its degradation. Mr. Harvey's fulmination, which would look far better in Harvey's Weekly than in the speech of an American ambassador, was based on the theory that President Harding's huge majority last November was a vote against the League of Nations. Mr. Harding himself has not concurred in this view, while Vice President Coolidge has quietly remarked that the result should in no wise be taken as a "mandate" against the League.

President Harding, speaking over the bodies of 5,112 American dead in rows of flag-draped coffins at the army pier at Hoboken, said: "I find a hundred thousand sorrows touching my heart, and there is ringing in my ears like an admonition eternal, an insistent call: 'It must not be again! It must not be again!' God grant it will not be, and let a practical people join in cooperation with God to the end that it shall not be." The sentiment is one to which we can all subscribe, but we are inclined to think that if war in the future is to be prevented by a practical people, the "cooperation with God" would take on more practical form if it were to embrace the nations which with us sacrificed millions of lives and untold treasure to forever destroy the principle that might makes right. This practical cooperation, or at least the basis for it, is certainly afforded by the League of Nations. We do not know that it is to be found anywhere else, even in the phantom association of nations that politics has evolved.

In the meantime, we find a modified peace declaration introduced in the house as a substitute for the Knox resolution, which in repealing the declaration of war prompted the Republican senator Nelson to ask if we are to let history "reflect the idea that we made a mistake" in so declaring. The House resolution reserves any and all rights, etc., to which the United States became entitled under the armistice, but that was signed more than thirty months ago and nothing has been done to assume or even define those rights. It reserves all rights acquired by reason of arbitration in the war or "under the treaty of Versailles," which we have not signed and which Ambassador Harvey tells one of our associated powers in the World War we do not intend to sign. Probably Secretary Hughes is the only person in the administration with the vision and capacity to see through this confusion and to bring order out of chaos in our disposition of the peace problems. We hope the president will give him the rein of freedom that the position of responsibility he occupies demands, and that he will abide by his judgment. Otherwise the outcome and the consequences are not happy to contemplate.

A GOOD SIGN FROM GERMANY

The news from Germany that the government and the financiers are making heroic efforts to stabilize exchange at a modest figure is of the greatest importance. That the first step is to be the diminishing of paper issues to the point of stoppage, indicates that the effort is to be a serious one. The epidemic of inflation which has swept the world during the past few years reached its greatest virulence in Germany. When the war began Germany's net circulation was, in round numbers, 1,900,000,000 marks. At the time of the armistice it had increased to 18 billion marks. A year ago it was nearly 50 billion marks. The figures for May 1, this year, are 70 billion marks, and going up.

There was no possibility of Germany's return to financial and industrial health until this situation was corrected. That it is to be corrected and that the decision has been made immediately following the acceptance by Germany of the allies' repatriation demands, is a sign that the Germans recognize the necessity of putting their financial house in order if they are to carry the great burden imposed upon them by the war.

FORESTS AND BEAUTY OF LANDSCAPE

The beauty of Wisconsin landscapes is materially enhanced by the presence of forested areas. The early pioneers to the plains of the Dakotas, coming as they did from forested states, were impressed with the lack of trees and substantial measures were initiated to encourage the planting of trees. These efforts were rewarded by the presence today of numerous groves and trees and a distinct improvement in the general living conditions of the region affected.

The relation between the flow of waters and forested lands has long been understood. This is particularly emphasized in the flow of springs and wells. Forested lands act as the gathering areas for natural waters. The soil of the forest is a porous soil, in which the rains readily soak, to appear later in the form of springs to feed brooks and rivers.

A landscape beautified by the presence of forests in large or small tracts, and supplied with the waters which forests tend to conserve and regulate, makes for a healthful and more enjoyable region to live in. By the protection of such forest lands, so that new forests can succeed the old timber removed for us, promotes prosperity and public welfare.

THANKS TO LIZZIE

By Bertion Braley

The rich people ever go touring
In huge and splendidous cars
That move with a smoothness alluring,
Protected from jolts and from jars;
Our car shakes the spine and the liver,
And yet it's our joy and our pride—
The little old family flivver
That cheerfully takes us to ride.

It's true when we go for a spin,
It is crowded wherever it wends;
For all of the family's in it,
Along with a number of friends.
Though packed till we scarcely can quiver,
We still can enjoy all the while
The little old family flivver
Which carries us mile after mile!

It's funny and dowsy and battered,
It rattles and jounces a lot,
But somehow that never has mattered
Compared to the fun that we got
In riding by hill, lake and river,
Wherever we happened to steer,
The little old family flivver
That's served us for many a year.

What care we for mud-guards that yammer
Or springs that complain as we run?
This car has brought magic and glamor;
It's made us all pals with the sun.
It's body may shimmy and shiver,
Its cylinders miss, yet we praise
The little old family flivver
That adds to the fun of our days!

THE CALLING OF THE NURSE

A nurse asking for advice about gaining weight remarks that she "accepts none but twelve-hour cases," meaning that she refuses to work more than twelve hours a day. At that, she works about four hours longer than a woman should work. And she does hard work, too.

Yet there is no other calling or profession—I myself do not consider nursing a profession, but rather a calling—which a woman can follow short of the most sacred of all callings, motherhood, that wins for a young woman so much love and respect as that of nursing. It is a hard life, with mighty little of the glamour which surrounds the nurse in the world of folderol fiction and youthful romance, yet a noble one and full of such thrills as never can be felt vicariously in the imagination.

Young women who seriously wish to study nursing should understand that practically every good training school today requires a complete high school education as a preliminary qualification for admittance to the prescribed course. Here and there a hospital or other institution may admit young women who are not high school graduates, but I would not advise a young woman to seek training in such an institution. If you are not prepared to qualify for a first class training, don't try to find a short cut. Better to be a practical nurse without any pretenses to the skill of a graduate nurse. We have plenty of places nowadays for intelligent, trustworthy women who are prepared to do practical nursing.

The young woman intending to study nursing must have good health, otherwise she cannot cope with the work a pupil nurse is called upon to do in the two or three years of her training.

Two years is an ample time for the thorough training of good nurses, although a few hospitals with excessively highbrow notions have adopted a three-year course. This represents one good year of life wasted so far as all ordinary medical and surgical and obstetrical nursing is concerned. A good many three-year graduates are spoiled by the superfluous year—made too heavy; they would have been far better nurses had they finished at the end of the second year. Of all the dangers there is none greater than the danger of a little knowledge. A good nurse is never found pretending to diagnose ailments and prescribe treatment—incompetent and almost doctors are fond of that caper.

Any young woman contemplating the study of nursing as a calling should discuss the matter with her family doctor or any doctor of standing in her own community. He is in a position to advise her what to do.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Raw Onions

Kindly tell me whether there are benefits or disadvantages derived from eating raw onions, and if any, what they are. (E. K.)

ANSWER—Onions supply certain desirable elements to the body, such as iron and lime. Green or raw onions contain vitamins. Onions are somewhat laxative, diuretic (increasing excretion through kidneys), expectorant (increasing or aiding expectoration to bronchitis) and soporific. Raw onions delay the emptying of the stomach; the delay permits more thorough admixture of the digesting food with the gastric juice, which means more complete stomach digestion and less work for the intestine. Therefore raw onions are sometimes valuable in the diet of persons with intestinal disease. Raw onions increase the hydrochloric acid secretion in the stomach, and should therefore be avoided by persons with diseases in which there is excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

Stammering

In reference to your treatment for stammering and stuttering I wish to inquire if it applies to that kind of stammering in which one loses all the breath before being able to articulate. Excitement makes it worse. (N. A.)

ANSWER—That is just what it applies to. That is the usual difficulty with stammerers and stutterers. But let's not call it "my treatment." I offer only some general advice on the subject with certain exercises which have been found useful in overcoming such faults. All of which I have gleaned from various competent medical authorities.

Sulphur and Molasses

I have been told that sulphur and molasses is a very good blood purifier to take in the spring—three days, then stop three days, then take three days again for three times. Please tell me the proportions. Call it have any ill effects? (B. N.)

ANSWER—No ill-effects. Both sulphur and molasses are merely mild laxatives. No effect on the blood. Mix molasses and flowers of sulphur in about equal quantities, and take a tablespoonful for a dose.

Revival Of The Mask

By Frederic J. Haskin

New York City.—One of the most notable features of this year's theatrical season, now drawing to a close, has been the revival of masks up on the stage. The season has been an exceptional one, containing many surprises and thrills, but nothing more sensational than the moment when the American dancer, Margaret Severn, paused in the midst of the Greenwich Village Follies and took off her face—a beautiful, painted face that had seemed unquestionably to belong to her. After that, the audience was prepared for anything, and Miss Severn did not disappoint it. She put on and took off a whole series of convincing faces.

Haskin

The new masks are the work of the well known artist, W. T. Benda. They have nothing in common with the kind affected by highwaymen, nor yet those worn by department store Santa Clauses, but draw their inspiration from the early days of the race when the mask was an important factor in the religious ritual. It is to be assumed that the race has forgotten those weird, ancient ceremonies. Certainly, the twentieth century is a far cry from the days when men danced around the temples of heathen gods, disguised in the grotesque masks of secret religious societies. Yet the new secret masks arouse a curious thrill of something strange and yet familiar.

To John Murray Anderson belongs the distinction of bringing back to the stage this oldest of dramatic features. Anderson is a member of that group of theater radicals, led by Rhinehardt and Gordon Craig, who have rebelled against the photographic realism of the present day theater and are going back to the primitive for their inspiration. He first saw the Benda mask when they were worn by Margaret Severn in a pantomime produced last spring at the New York Coffee House club. He was immediately impressed with their great artistic value, and decided that the follies should feature them.

Mr. Benda's part in the revival of the mask, while important, was purely accidental. "I was forced at the last moment to make a paper mask to wear to a masquerade ball," he explained, "when questioned concerning his discovery. It served well and for days lay around my studio. Then I thought of preserving it in more permanent form, and began fashioning it out of cardboard. The work had a strange fascination, which grew until mask-making became a sort of hobby with me. A thousand dollars would not cover the cost of time, study, skill and labor I put into each mask. But there is an hypnotic charm, as the early Greeks discovered."

Mask-Making an Art

As may be imagined from this explanation, each of the Benda masks is a real work of art. The artist spends weeks in fashioning one head of cardboard and paper, often lining the interior with gold leaf and carefully painting the exterior. First, he makes a sketch of the face on cardboard. Then he cuts out the features and adjusts them, rounding the cheeks, filling out depressions with bits of paper, and building up his effects like a sculptor with clay. The result is a face which when ready for painting, looks much like a human face after emerging from a major plastic operation. There is usually a small slit for the eyes, which are painted on in the most realistic fashion. Small strips of paper, painted dark brown, form the eyelashes. The nostrils are well slit, also, to permit breathing; but the mouths are closed. Hair is painted on or built up by means of painted paper. "I have recently been experimenting with masks from living models," says Mr. Benda. "From careful drawing of the model's face I cut out the profile and fit it to the face, filling out the discrepancies with bits of paper until all is rounded to the contour of the original—in short, a perfect fit. It is delicate, tedious work. When the whole mask is feature proof, I paint it as would a portrait painter."

Mr. Benda's studio in Gramercy park contains dozens of masks, each one of which is a distinct masterpiece of its kind. It was from this collection, representing three years' work, that Mr. Anderson selected the masks for Miss Severn to wear in the Follies—the Oriental Princess, the Queen with the Peacock Headdress, the Flirt or Silly Girl, Madama Butterfly, and the head of a monk. The interior of the masks, not having been made especially for Miss Severn, are makeshift, particularly the head of the flirt, whose mouth, Miss Severn says, has always scraped her nose.

The only drawback to the use of the mask is that it cannot be worn continuously throughout a performance. Owing to the difficulty it presents to breathing, the time limit for its continuous wear is 15 minutes. In the case of pantomime when they are worn throughout the entire scene, they are promptly removed as the curtain falls.

Masks of Long Ago

Mr. Benda, who is the nephew of the late Madame Modjeska, has always been interested in the theater. It was his knowledge of the history of the drama which caused him to become interested in the making of masks. In the libraries and museums he found samples of masks that had been worn five centuries before Christ. "And they were pretty good masks, too," he said. "Even those of the early tribes were crudely artistic, while those of the Greeks represented are artistic achievements."

No one knows when the first masks came into being, but it is well known that they were used in ancient tribal dances. The tribal dance, of course, was the first form of dramatic art. It was the race's first form of self-expression and was developed in connection with religious worship. The dance is still the only form of dramatic art practiced by primitive tribes existing in the world today.

"Among the Aloutians mystic mask-dances form part of their holy ceremonies," we are told by one authority. "Some of these dances are performed by women. Hundreds of women dance round their idols by moonlight, and all have their faces covered with wooden masks, painted in imitation of the heads of sea animals. These masks have no apertures for eyes, only holes beneath the nose, which allow the dancers to look downward but in no other direction."

"American Indians also have mystic festivities at which whole pantomimes are performed and the actors appear disguised, usually as animals, and belong to secret societies. No outsider is admitted to these strictly ritual dances. Many of them have passed out of existence, but others are still held with great regularity. Membership in these secret societies is always restricted and the members enjoy certain special privileges. Thus, the Hanata, which is a society among the northwest Indians, was once allowed to eat hump seal."

"The secret societies among the Polynesians kill and eat anybody who happens to intrude upon their dances. The dancers wear monstrous animal heads or grotesque human faces, carved of light wood and gaudily painted in red, black and white; the head covered with a framework of cane, decorated with vegetable substances to represent hair. Sometimes the masks are made of two tortoise shells elaborately put together and carved."

"In New Britain the natives observe the pleasant custom of using the skulls of their deceased relatives for masks. The skull is provided at the back with a transverse bar, which the dancer keeps in his teeth while whirling about. The head is covered with a with a kind of clay, painted with red, white and blue stripes around the eyes and mouth."

The Greeks also used masks for their dramatic, interpretive dances, but after this they seem largely to have disappeared. Probably they met their doom with the birth of Christianity and the subsequent dark ages, which stifled so much of the early art. At any rate, the restless twentieth century has rediscovered them and found them just as fascinating as they were when the race was young.

Q. What kind of food should be used with poison as rat bait? R. K.

A. The Department of Agriculture stresses the fact that it is necessary to tempt the well fed rats of this country by providing a variety of foods. Select bait from the three classes, meat, vegetable and cereal, combining each with barium carbonate in the proportion of one part poison to four parts food. If one kind of food does not attract the rat, probably another sort will.

Q. Who furnishes bronze name plates for soldier memorial trees? L. M. W.

A. The American Forestry Association, Washington, D. C. furnishes such plates for soldier memorial trees.

Q. How is a break in a cable under water mended? L. S.

A. The Bureau of Standards says that steamers are specially equipped for the purpose of finding a break in a cable under the ocean. Steaming at right angles to the cable they pick up one end of it with grappling irons. They pass along this till they come to the break. A new piece is spliced on the other broken end and picked up and another splice made.

Q. What kind of wood are xylophones made of? M. G. C.

A. The bars of many xylophones are made of Nagad wood. This gives a clean and brilliant tone and is hard enough to withstand hard usage. The wood of which the bars are made is seasoned for from three to seven years, in order that the bars will stay in tune. The sounding board frames are usually made of white quarter sawed oak with sound boards of spruce.

Q. What became of the famous Long Tom Gun, and what weight was it? E. B.

A. The Long Tom is a 42-pound gun which was originally part of the French battleship Hoche. It was captured by the English in 1798 and sold to America. During the French attack on Haiti in 1804 it was used and dismantled until 1912. It was placed on the "General Armstrong which ran the blockade of the British at New Orleans, 1814. The General Armstrong ran into the bay near Horta, Azores (Azore Islands) after an encounter with a British squadron, through which she was rendered helpless. Long Tom was dismantled and remained at Fayal until brought back to New York in 1892. This was through the efforts of Colonel Reid, son of the commander of the General Armstrong.

Q. Does the eel live in the water entirely? H. D.

A. The Bureau of Fisheries says that the eel is amphibious, that is, it is able to live both on land and in water. However, the eel has gills,

Ann Salvages a Human Dordick

"She hasn't come out! Let me in! I must find her! I know the way to her cell!" Thus I raved "She's locked in! Why can't you understand?" I used my small strength to push past Morrison's assistant. He held me as a parent restrains a rebellious child. "Don't get excited!" he said, "we'll trust the old man!"

And what could I do but keep still—and trust the old man. Even in the anxiety of that awful moment it was plain to me that there are situations in which the emancipated female can not compete with the male. As in ancient days, she must continue "to trust the old man." Ann could easily get into jail and Martha and I could easily have had her out, but when the prison was ablaze we women were helpless and forced to rely upon the strength and judgment of the males to save us!

Once more was my trust in Morrison justified. He appeared, presently, with an arm around my small sister in law! I flew to her and kissed her! Not often in my life had I done that!

Behind her came a fireman carrying an old woman, a pitiful, bedraggled, horrid creature, who swore at her rescuer. I recognized the hoarse voice and the vocabulary of the poor, drunken thing whose slang had assailed my ears when I stood at the door of Ann's cell.

Morrison hunted up Martha and my car. It had been pushed from the prison yard and was parked behind the fire-line. The wretched old woman was hurried to a hospital in an ambulance, and then Morrison ordered us girls to go straight home—as if we were naughty college freshmen caught in a lark!

Not until we were out of the traffic jam did I demand her story from the tiny, grimy, but alert babe beside me. "Some yarn, I'll say!" Ann began. "That drunken old woman gave me some grand ideas for my play!" And I've invented a dance with a new motif—the smoke dance! Can't you see it, girls, a ballet staggering around in blue smoke? I got the idea from the women tearing along the jail corridors just think what it would make on the stage! Dishabille—dishabille dames staggering, drooping, falling against a background of flames—until their dancing partners rescue them!"

"Never mind the smoke dance, Ann! Tell us all that happened to you!"

Martha's quiet voice brought Ann to her senses. She replied:

"You and Jane hadn't been gone long when the prison matron dropped around to get acquainted. She told me about the awful old woman who was so awful drunk! Just think, girls! Once that poor thing had been pretty and so popular! And she's been in the workhouse more times than any other person on the records! The matron told me! And I guess she would have died in the fire—but for me!"

Ann spoke as if the old woman's criminal record added much to the value of the derelict she had rescued! (To Be Continued)

BLAINE REQUESTS CHANGES IN STATE PROHIBITION BILL

Governor Asks Assembly to Recall Bill and Amend Its Provisions.

Special to Post-Crescent.
Madison.—Governor John J. Blaine today requested the assembly to recall the Matheson prohibition enforcement bill from his possession for the purpose of amendment.

Three specific objections were raised to the bill by the governor in a special message delivered to the assembly at 10 o'clock this morning. He recommends that these objections be over come by amendments.

The objections raised were:

First: Removal of all ambiguities and uncertainties in order to clarify the bill.

Second: To harmonize the Matheson bill with the federal or Volstead act.

Third: To revise the "manufacture of wine and beer for private and family use and not for sale," feature of the measure.

The legislature has until Monday to decide what course of action it will pursue. If the assembly refuses to recall the bill, Governor Blaine will be forced either to approve or veto the measure.

"I would specifically make the act conform to the Volstead act in all essential particulars," said the governor in his message.

"I would provide a penalty for drunkenness and for unlawful purchase of liquor."

"I would amend the bill to provide for the automatic revocation of a license or permit on the conviction of the licensee."

"It is a well known fact," said Governor Blaine, "that the federal enforcement daily win the violation of the Volstead act for the reason that the federal enforcement officials have found it utterly impossible to enforce that act so far as it prohibits the manufacture of wine and beer for private and family use and not for sale. This failure on the part of the federal government only invites disregard for law and I am advised by the attorney general that a like provision is contained in the Matheson bill and under his construction as to the enforcement of that provision, it is quite impossible for enforcement."

NUXATED IRON
Helps make rich red blood and revitalize weak nerves

A CAUSE OF WOMEN'S ILLS

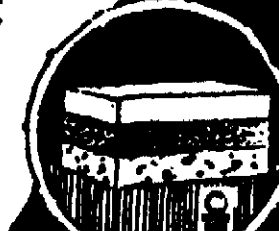

WOMEN OFTEN THINK THEY HAVE HEART TROUBLE, INDIGESTION, NERVOUS PROSTRATION, ETC., WHEN IT'S SIMPLY IRON STARVATION OF THE BLOOD.

Many women believe they are weak and nervous as a result of age, worry and overwork; they think that their disturbed digestion, headaches, heart palpitation, shortness of breath, pains across the back, etc., are due to some serious disease instead of the real cause—iron starvation of the blood. This is proven by the fact that when many of these same women take organic iron for awhile all their alarming symptoms quickly disappear and they become strong, robust and healthy. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living cells and tissue. Without it nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good—you do not get the strength out of it.

If you are not strong and well do not wait until you go all to pieces and collapse in a state of nervous prostration, but take some organic iron—Nuxated Iron—at once. But be sure it's organic iron and not metallic iron which people usually take and which is made merely by the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron. Organic NUXATED IRON is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples and it often increases the bodily and mental vigor of weak, worried women in two weeks' time.

Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "Nuxated" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturer if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

C. OF C. STUDYING GOLF LINK IDEA

Details of Municipal Course Are Contained in Report From National Body.

Through a comprehensive report on municipal golf links received from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Secretary Hugh G. Corbett of the Appleton chamber has equipped himself with information which will be used in considering such a proposal for this city. The data was obtained in response to request of citizens for public links in Appleton.

Brief extracts from the early history of golfing, contained in the report, indicate that golf was not strictly a "gentleman's game" in Scotland, where it first was played. The links were laid out in the city streets. Here golfing was the sport of the wealthy classes on courses privately maintained until 1895, when Boston and Indianapolis opened links for public use.

Now many cities have public courses where all may play. Most of these are in the larger cities. Milwaukee and Racine are the only Wisconsin cities taking this step.

Link recommended for Appleton would be a 18-hole course of not less than 4,000 yards, the length of holes to vary according to the layout of the course. If only a 9-hole course is available, it should be nearly 3,000 yards long. Instructions for laying out a course and a model set of rules accompany the report.

Cost of such a project varies from $1,200 for a 9-hole course to $50,000 for an 18-hole course. Yearly maintenance figures run from $500 for a 9-hole course to $12,000 for an 18-hole course. Racine has a 9-hole course 2,300 feet long, built in 1913 at a cost of $15,000. The cost of maintenance is $4,000 a year.

Consideration is to be given establishment of golf links here by the community welfare committee of the chamber of commerce. The matter will be studied from all angles and a report made to the board of directors.

EDISON TELLS WHEN A MAN IS EDUCATED

Discussing "what constitutes an education," Thomas A. Edison said a man is educated when he is "some-what familiar with every branch of the environment in which we live—social, commercial and scientific."

This holds out hope to the young people struggling upward in the world today. They can educate themselves. No better and more concise fund of information is held out to men and women, boys and girls today than The New Universities Dictionary, now being distributed to readers of this paper. This dictionary condenses in one volume most of the information concerning the world's present-day activities. It is more than a vocabulary, more than a mere list of words—it is a complete inventory of today's English.

This paper's offer of this remarkable book has proven to be highly popular. The demand for the dictionary continues with increasing force. Already new supplies have been ordered, and the publishers say they have equal demands from other cities, making it hard for them to keep up with orders. Since this is purely an educational offer, and the books are given out at nominal expense, the mere cost of handling, the time limit will soon be reached, and readers are urged to get their copies without delay.

Says Every Railroad Man Should Read This

Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. Dear Sirs: I was afflicted with what the doctors said were Varicose Ulcers, and up until about five weeks ago I have been treating them for about a year and five months.

With all the treatments that were prescribed to me by several doctors I received little benefit, and they kept spreading and gave me much distress and caused me to quit my work. I was induced by a brother brakeman to try Peterson's Ointment, and after I had used two boxes I saw wonderful results. You can tell suffering ones troubled with ugly, painful and horrid ulcers that your Ointment is a cure for them when everything else fails, as I have tried about everything. Thanking you many times over I am, your happy friend, Chas. J. Heyser, Battle Creek, Mich., 42 Glenwood Avenue, January 12, 1916. FOREIGNERS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR CHINA'S TROUBLES

United States is the Only Nation Which Has the Respect of All Chinese.

BY CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL
Copyright, 1921, by Post Pub. Co.
Canton.—For going on a hundred years now the big and greedy nations of Christendom have looked upon China as a Thanksgiving turkey, nicely fattened for their palates and in due time certain to be brought to table for their carving; then, the meanwhile, helping themselves to rich samples of the stuffing.

It is not a story to swell with pride the bosom of him that believes too much in civilization. England's two opium wars, Hong Kong, Wei-hai-wei, Indo-China, Shantung, and the ex-torted and thieving railroad concessions, the rotten incident about the Liaotung peninsula, the chapter on forced loans, and the rest—they look far from pretty now in print. Not only so, but it seems to be a fact that in the rear of all these excursions in international piracy lurks old Retribution, and when that old boy starts in with his flail to even things up he doesn't seem to care where he hits. Just as the present time he is hitting us all for depredations most of us had nothing to do with, and the sting of his blows is bitter.

It is this way. Mankind at large is short of many things that it needs for its daily life. Some of mankind is so short of these things that it is starving. This same China, in a part of which we have lately been fighting famine, looks upon the world with the greatest of all undeveloped resources in the things that mankind needs. The world wants China products, present and potential; it wants China coal, iron, steel, cotton, man power, its wants likewise China development to make the wobbling balances of exchange come somewhere near normal.

Therefore we have the far-famed consortium, which is a big, commanding name for a thing as simple as usury. Certain financial interests in the United States, France, Great Britain and Japan get together and hatch out a scheme to lend to China much money wherewith China may develop its vast resources, get out its iron, coal, wheat, cotton, oil, that mankind needs, and issue, in return for the loans, the bonds that may lay steady hands upon the wobbling exchange balance.

But first there must be settled conditions in China, or what can so be called anyway, and instead of settled conditions China is politically like a gigantic madhouse. Two national governments, North China and South China, each declaring itself to be the only real thing, so-called civil war between these banditti that are named soldiers, looting and burnings, most of the provinces operating after their own sweet will, and altogether chaos on a spree.

This grave and reverend consortium views with disapproval. It noddles China that these rows must be settled and these quarrelling factions must be united. In response China gives the consortium the swift kick and says, On with the dance, and it is on.

Therefore, the world gets none of the things it needs from China, the exchange balance continues to wobble, the exploiters are baffled, and the disinterested friends of China, who have no profit to extract from it but only wish the salvation of a people with so many sterling and attractive traits, are about ready to despair.

All of which the international pirates insured for us when they forced opium upon China at the point of the gun, introduced graft, rent the country in the search for stuffing, in the eyes of all the world sharpened their knives for the full feast to come, and founded the doctrine that in dealing with Orientals we can lie, cheat, steal, plunder and murder, set faction against faction, bribe and play the devil's own tricks and all will be well.

The consortium, a foreign influence, for its own profit, urges China to unite, and other foreign influences, for their own profit, keep it divided.

Each of the provinces has a civil or military governor, or both, appointed by the federal government, and supposed (by a fiction) to be responsible thereto. One or the other, and it is usually the military man, waxes in power, becomes a kind of satrap, gets his own band of marauders or soldiers, defies all other authority and goes his way under the tutelage, encouragement and often financial support of some interested foreigners, true to the traditions of a century of western duplicity about China.

This is not always the case. Sometimes the governor is incorruptible and unselfish. But there are enough crooks and bribe-eaters to keep the marketplace running.

The most progressive of the provinces, the most enlightened, democratic and hopeful is Kwang-tung, of which the capital is this wonderful working city of Canton, where the magic of the steam roller and the cement mixer are making the old Aladdin stuff look cheap. To show that the chaos of China, though deplorable, and to the rest of the world costly, is not really Chinese but due to foreign interference, and to show at the same time, that it is not hopeless but curable, take one incident from Kwang-tung.

Until last November this province had been plagued, off and on with a procession of satraps, real, imaginary or selfimagined. With one of these five eminent foreign firms made a compact by which 90 per cent of the provincial means of transportation and communication was to be delivered into their hands for their own private profit.

Here was stuffing that dripped with greed and richness. Before it could

FREIGHT BOAT SINKS LAUNCH; HITS STEAMER

Mantoloking.—While the big freighter, William A. Reiss was being towed stern first from the Reiss coal dock down river the bow of the steamer swung around, striking and sinking a launch and damaging the Goodrich liner, Carolina and docks owned by the city.

The freighter had been upriver unloading a cargo of coal.

On account of dangerous turns in the river the boat was being towed by the company's tug, Peter Reiss of Sheboygan.

The Carolina was not seriously damaged but the Reiss company will be obliged to pay the city for damages to the docks as well as for the loss of the launch which was owned by William Nelson.

be swallowed, the people revolted. Along came General Chiu'ing Ming, who is a patriot and on the level, and Dr. Sun Yat-sen, who is also on the level and one of the most remarkable men in China. They chased the satrapy, set up a rational government at Canton, kicked the five firms down stairs and threw their contract after them.

The five firms and the interests back of them immediately became the new government's deadly enemies and will continue so to be, but at least General Ming and Dr. Sun Yat-sen had established a principle, new in China's public affairs, wholesome and becoming popular, that nothing is valid, or can be, that is hostile to public interest. The people of Kwang-tung want Ming and Sun Yat-sen. The offended foreign capitalists are against them, and in the face of such conditions the consortium might as well go play marbles and plead for peace.

It must have been in a spirit of prophecy that the Chinese of other generations called outsiders "foreign devils."

To cite one other illustration from many, nothing else would help China so much now as the reform of its currency conditions. It needs to go upon a gold basis and it needs to have its currency unified. Foreign banking influences steadily defeat both reforms. Foreign banking houses make money out of the present silver basis; they make money out of the currency conditions by which the money of one province does not circulate in another. It is reason enough: the bad currency conditions are entrenched, and buttressed in foreign profits.

But there is one foreign power that could change all this. One foreign power could unite the North and the South, put an end to the confusion, help to establish an enduring popular government and above China ahead upon its eventual road to peace and development. The United States of America could do all this, because it is the only foreign power that all Chinamen, North and South, hold in respect, the only power stronger than bribery, graft and chicanery. The United States of America does not en-

STOCK SHIPPERS WIN IMPORTANT DECISION

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison.—The Wisconsin Farm Bureau federation has won an important and far reaching victory for the Wisconsin stockmen in a decision handed down by the railroad commission today.

Railroads have been ordered to permit storage in transit of all stock cars. The charge for the additional stop is fixed by the commission at $6.50.

The decision affects every cattle shipper in the state. They were allowed the privilege of partially loading a car with stock at one point and gathering the remainder of the load at another. The cost of the second stop was $2.00. When the government began operating the roads it ruled that a full load must be taken on at the original point.

This ruling forced shippers to drive stock long distances, with consequent losses in shrinkage, in order to get full loads at original points.

Loading at the second point is limited to 48 hours by the commissioners and no portion of the load from the original point may be taken off at the stopping point.

The order is effective thirty days from date.

tain the slightest suspicion that it possesses this great power because the United States of America prefers to know nothing about itself outside of its own frontiers, but its power exists, nevertheless, just as I have stated. Without exploiting anybody, bribing anybody, swindling anybody or shoving guns at anybody, it could by friendly offices with both sides, and thus by the exercise of its moral influence unify China, open these resources and spread this peace.

Will it? It will not. It will trundle right along on its good old beaten path with a ton of wool over each eye and fooled and led along in its foreign policy by the conventional axioms and hypocritical morality of the stuffing grabbers and opium sellers. It always has done this and probably it always will.

We've just been reading where Sec. Hoover Says:

That there's no use investigating retail prices any further — that some retailers have already liquidated, cleaned house, taken their losses and got down to the new normal basis. And Herb, says, sezze, that the thing for the public to do is to go shopping around and compare prices.

That's just what we've always urged people to do — compare our goods and our prices with anything they can find elsewhere. We thrive on comparisons, for they substantiate our claim to greater value-giving.

It won't take you very long to decide which store will serve you best this season, for here you'll find only NEW merchandise—attractive, finely tailored, of known quality — all selling at the NEW low prices—right down to hard-pan.

One Change at Lincoln
The only change in the Lincoln school is in the fifth grade teacher. Miss Myrtle Van Ryzin who had it this year, has accepted a position at Columbus school and her place will be filled by Miss Lena Koepf of Sioux City, Ia.

In the Franklin school, Miss Dorothy Harris of Milwaukee has been secured as assistant kindergarten director to fill the position vacated by the resignation of Miss Fanchon Call. Irene Grootemont who has resigned as third grade teacher will be succeeded by Miss Estell Straseburger of Appleton.

ORGANIST PLEASES IN CHAPEL RECITAL

The first of the series of recitals by classified students of Lawrence conservatory was given last evening in Lawrence Memorial chapel when Doris Brenner, organist, presented a program of organ music.

Miss Brenner displayed her superior talent as an organist in a well chosen program of standard compositions in which she brought out the varied possibilities of the pipe organ in an interesting and musical manner. Her abundant technique and superb musical understanding enabled her to play the exacting program with a style that was interesting and convincing to the appreciative listener.

The Guilmant sonata was given a broad reading and displayed Miss Brenner's command of effective registration. The Bach Fantasia in G minor, as played by Miss Brenner, was a spontaneous musical utterance of great brilliancy and grandeur. Bonnet "Caprice Heroique," Karg-Elert "Clair de Lune" and the "Brook" by Dethier were received with special approbation by the audience, and Miss Brenner graciously added an encore.

A great success should be registered for the young artist and her teacher, Frank A. Taber, Jr., should be especially gratified at the success of this organ recital.

The assisting artist on this program was Marion Hanson, a student of Carl J. Waterman, who sang songs by Massenet, Rabey, Strauss, Chadwick and La Forge with good tone and a sympathetic appreciation of the text. She was applauded most cordially.

Scouts Want Ma And Pa To Visit Park Saturday

"Listen, pa and ma. You gotta come out and see us do our stunts Saturday. I'll be mad if you aren't in the crowd when we climb that high wall 'n everything."

This simple appeal of an enthusiastic boy scout is being heard in many homes this week. E. R. Henderson, scout executive, has spoken in the meeting of every troop in Appleton, telling the boys to urge their parents to attend the field day exercises in Jones park Saturday afternoon from 2 o'clock to 5:15. Such elaborate preparations have been made that Mr. Henderson feels that the public ought to do the occasion justice by providing the scouts a massive audience.

Several attractive prizes have been presented to the scouts for obtaining the highest total number of points for all events. First, second and third rank will be given in each contest. The points will be summed up at the close

MAY LOCATE NEW PAPERMILL HERE

Eastern capitalists who intend to build a paper mill in Wisconsin are considering Appleton as the site for its plant. A letter has been received by the chamber of commerce from I. W. Valentina, a New York attorney, asking about the advantages of this locality for such an industry. Questions he asked indicate that 200 horsepower must be available at the factory site, there must be pure water, railroad facilities and place for at least 60,000 square feet of factory space. Secretary Hugh G. Corbett is making a full investigation, and is supplying the attorney with the information. More definite facts concerning the proposed venture are expected later.

Fly Flag for Funerals
Permission has been granted the postoffice by the treasury department to fly the flag at half mast over the federal building when soldier bodies brought here from abroad are being buried. MANY POULTRY RAISERS OBTAIN LEGHORN EGGS

Exactly 1,510 hatching eggs from White Leghorn hens with trapnest records of 230 to 250 eggs a year were distributed in the county by Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank. The eggs proved to be good ones, with a high percentage hatching viable chicks. Some nestings made 100 per cent hatching records. The bank obtained the eggs from the college of agriculture, Madison, and distributed them at cost. The average egg production of the ordinary hen is about 70 a year, so those who are hatching purebreds expect to enjoy a real profitable egg year.

NEW CATCHER AND NEW INFILDER ON BRANDT'S SQUAD

Shotte to Work Behind the Bat and Mudlaff Returns to Third Base.

Important changes will be made in the Brandt team when it lines up against Kaukauna here Sunday afternoon in the first of a two game holiday series. Defection of O'Connor has made it necessary to secure a new catcher and Joe Shotte, Hank Schultz's battery partner, will fill the place. Hank informed Brandt Friday that Shotte would be here ready to go to work. He is regarded as one of the best semi pro catchers in Milwaukee and is said to be a terrific hitter. Brandt expects him to balance his team of sluggers and may bat in the clean up position.

Mudlaff, who starred at third base for a few games last year, also will wear a Brandt uniform Sunday and Monday. Manager Spies expects to play him on third base, shift Duran to second and place Beyer in the outfield. Beyer is an infielder to all intents and purposes but is a good man in the outer gardens. He is one of the surest hitters on the team and his speed make him a valuable man. Duran, who has been good at third is expected to make an even better showing at second.

The third base corner has given Brandt considerable trouble this year. Duran filled the position in an acceptable manner and now Mudlaff is going to take a crack at it. Mudlaff, in addition to being a fast infielder, is a heavy hitter, in spite of his small size. He was leading the league in the three or four games he played his season.

Brandt probably will have another pitcher to send against New London here on Monday if Schultz feels his arm is not equal to the two day strain. A victory over Kaukauna would give the boys lots of confidence for the real test the following day. New London undoubtedly has the strongest team in the league and is setting a merry pace for the other squads.

29 SCHOOLS MEET IN HARVARD GAMES

Nearly 700 Stars of College Athletics Gather for Annual Track Meet.

By United Press Leased Wire
Cambridge, Mass.—The stars of the college athletic world—nearly 700 men whose names are high in the annals of field and track sports—gathered within the gray walls of Harvard's great stadium here Friday for honors in the forty-fifth annual eastern intercollegiate track and field championships.

Athletes from 29 colleges were entered. California's team, which came here a week ago to get acclimated, has been training steadily and appeared in fine condition. Out of the big entry list the names of Allen Woodring, Syracuse sprinter Edward O. Gourdin, Harvard's crack colored flyer and Earl Thompson, Dartmouth's world's champion hurdler stood out as the strongest contenders in their events.

In the century dash, Kirksey of Leeland, and Woodring were picked to fight it out.

London of Yale stood out as a strong favorite in the high jump. He will have Muller of California, to reckon with, however, in addition to Brown of Dartmouth.

Muller recently jumped six feet, 3 1/2 inches. In the mile run, Irish of Cornell, and Campbell of Yale look the best.

Harvard men claimed that Ned Gourdin was unbeatable in the broad jump.

Halsey of Princeton was expected to make a good showing in the shot put.

Majors of California and Teibert of Harvard are also competing in this event.

LEONARD WORKING HARD FOR BATTLE

New York—Benny Leonard is putting in some strenuous training since his illness in preparation for his bout with Rocky Kansas, which will be held in the Harrison ball park on Monday, June 6. Leonard declared he would experience no difficulty in making the weight, which is to be 135 pounds at 2 o'clock on the day of the contest.

Reports from Buffalo say that Rocky Kansas is already down to 135 pounds and expects to go into the ring weighing 134 1/2, so that in the event of Kansas scoring a knockout there will be no dispute as to whether the title passes.

Whatever objections Tex Rickard might have filed with the New Jersey boxing commission against the holding of the Leonard-Kansas match at Harrison were withdrawn on Wednesday. As a matter of fact, it did not become generally known until then that Rickard had filed any objections. This leaked out when Dave Mackay and Dave Driscoll, joint promoters of the match, and Billy Gibson, manager of Leonard, were notified to appear by the boxing commission to explain just where Rickard stood in the affair. But when Tex withdrew his objections, the explaining was not necessary.

700 GAMES!

Everett Scott and the hands that have made him a crack shortstop.

Add Everett Scott, shortstop of the Boston Red Sox, to the list of baseball heroes.

He recently passed the 700 mark in appearance in consecutive ball games—and Ev claims this is a record.

His performance began back on June 30, 1916. In his run of 700 games he was at bat 2437 times and swatted for an average of .254.

Around the keystone sack he had 4,755 chances and but 116 went into the error column. This gave him an average of .976.

Scott joined the Boston crew in 1913, went to St. Paul for a short time and then came back up.

COLLEGIANS OFF TO STATE MEET

Fifteen Lawrence Men Entered in Intercollegiate Games in Beloit.

Fifteen Lawrence college athletes are to leave Friday afternoon for Beloit where they will take part in the annual intercollegiate track and field meet. Coach H. D. McChesney will accompany the squad. Two men have been entered in the state tennis tournament which is to be held Friday.

McChesney is confident of grabbing off at least a few points in the meet but is not making any predictions of victory. His team consists largely of untied men, many of whom are making their first appearance in college track sports. He has the nucleus of a good squad, however, and the boys may show up better than expected.

Goan's leg is said to be in better shape and he is expected to place well among the leaders in the sprints. Doering also has shown considerable speed the last few days.

Considerable reliance is being placed on Kubitz in the short dashes. Kubitz had a bad habit of heaving the gun and when he got over that he lagged at the start. He has put in considerable time lately trying to get off to a good start and if he has any kind of luck his opponents will have to step to stay ahead of him.

Lawrence is sending a well balanced squad into the meet and local students would not be surprised if the Blue and White finishes in second or third place.

Sport Views And News

Johnny Bull is probably breathing easier now that America did not walk off with the British amateur golf championship. At that, it is a certainty that these pesky Yanks were giving the Londoners a few gray hairs during the opening rounds of the tourney. Considering conditions, the American players covered themselves with glory and Wright's brilliant fight against the British star, Darwin, will go down in the history of golf as one of the most brilliant battles ever pulled off on the links.

Chicago American legion posts have heaped quite an honor on Eddie Collins, the sterling second sacker of the Clevelander tribe, by selecting him as the real American baseball hero. Collins' war record is gone over and the star is given credit for joining the marines, despite the fact that he was over the draft age in 1917, and serving in a real man's army. Collins enlisted in the service as a private instead of availing a chance to jump into swivel chair job and it looks as if Collins is deserving of all the glory heaped upon him by the veterans of the Windy City.

Tris Speaker has had his share of grief this year and it is a wonder that he has kept his Indians so far up in the race. Now to cap the climax, the Cleveland manager is on the injured list himself. He was hit on the wrist by a pitched ball and doctors say it will be about a week before he can get back into action on the diamond. The Indians are like a ship without a rudder when their manager is on the sidelines and it wouldn't be surprising if the world champions got a few crumps put in their percentage while Speaker is a member of the hospital crew.

Speaking of injuries, Everett Scott of the Boston Americans wouldn't know what to do with a doctor. The

JACK WATCHES HIS OPPONENT'S FEET; CAN'T CATCH EYE

If Georges Has Hypnotic Eye
It Won't Do Him Any Good
Next July 2.

BY JOHNNY KILBANE
Featherweight Champion
The bunk about Georges Carpentier's hypnotic eye is going the rounds again.

Kilbane

It isn't worth mentioning except that it brings up this interesting question: "Suppose a real hypnotist should get into the ring with Dempsey, would his hypnotic eye affect the champ?"

Absolutely not! The chances are that his hypnotic eye rather would be sporting black and blue decorations after the first or second round if the owner of it was able to stay on his feet even that long.

For Jack Dempsey, like every other modern boxer, does not watch his opponent's eyes. He keeps his gaze on his opponent's feet.

Watching the feet has several advantages. An experienced boxer can tell by a man's position what sort of an attack he is going to make, for every jab or hook or uppercut is sent over only after a fighter gets "set" to deliver them. And the feet betray his intentions first.

A clever fighter, by keeping close watch on his opponent's feet, can so time his own blows that they can be delivered when the opponent is off his balance. At such times, even a punch that is pulled is good for a knockout.

A third advantage in keeping the eyes down is that a fighter's chin—one of the three vulnerable spots—is tucked away out of danger from an uppercut. For naturally it would be harder for a man to land on a chin that was buried down on the chest than one that was stuck out to meet a wallop as a chin would have to be if a fighter looked his adversary in the eye.

No, not even three hypnotic eyes would help Carpentier in the fight July 2. For 90 per cent of the time Dempsey will have his eyes on the Frenchman's feet.

shortfielder has played through 700 games in a row. This is a new major league record and a mark that probably won't be equaled for many a year. The Red Star hasn't missed a contest since June 30, 1916 and in that time he has handled 4,755 chances with but 116 errors. Carpentier's Career

Georges Carpentier has come to the United States from France to fight Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title less known than any fighter who ever went into a world championship fight. Hal Cochran, in this story of Carpentier's life, written for the Post-Crescent, tells of the struggles of the one-time mine pit boy in rising to the light-heavyweight championship of the world.

BY HAL COCHRAN.
CHAPTER 5.

All question as to Georges Carpentier's right to the claim of champion of France was settled when he won from Marcel Moreau in eight rounds, and later on from Albert Lurie, official heavyweight champion.

Bouts had been paying the French team, Carpentier-Desamps, well, and Georges became a real idol of his country, while his manager reaped a financial harvest.

Six knockouts in a row were next added to the long string of wins Carpentier had accumulated. Random Rice, Cyclone Smith and George Gunther fell in order, in 1, 2, 3 and 14 rounds.

Jars Englund's Pride.

Bombardier Wells, English heavy weight, then took the count in four frames and Albert Lurie and Ashley Williams, both Frenchmen, toppled in three and four frames respectively.

The Wells defeat was a blow to Englund's fistie pride. A youngster, several inches shorter and many pounds lighter, had trimmed one of its leading battlers.

In the meantime Jeff Smith, an American, had run up a list of wins in Paris. Georges took him on and won in 20 rounds. This battle was followed with a knockout of M. Abbott in three rounds, and a second knockout of Wells, in one round. That was the last battle of 1913.

Throughout Carpentier's fighting career there had been gossip of Desamps and Georges working the "hypnotic eye" on opponents. It traced back to the early days when the two played master and pupil in "thought reading" performances.

Georges Explains.

In connection with this Georges says:

"Desamps takes away from me, by his very influence, all my cares and troubles when I am scheduled to fight, leaving me to enter the ring with only a fighting mind."

"He subtly convinces me that he is actually fighting at the same time I am, and fighting for me."

So much for the "hypnotic eye." It was Carpentier's wallops that were carrying him to victories.

His first battle in 1914 resulted in a knockout of Pat O'Keefe, in two rounds. George Mitchell, Hubert Roe and Philippe Robinson also went out over the sleep route.

Gumboat Smith, topnotch American scrapper, then journeyed to Paris and lost to Carpentier in the sixth round, on a foul. Another foul gave Georges a win over Kid Jackson in four rounds.

Then Joe Jeanette, prize American negro husky, crossed the pond and handed the French wiz a lacing in 15 rounds.

Served as Aviator.

This ended Georges' prewar battles except for a few exhibition bouts.

When France went to war with Germany, Georges enlisted in the aviation branch. He was twice decorated during the fighting days he gave many boxing exhibitions for American troops in France.

The fighting game had piled up a fortune for Carpentier. He had even purchased an interest in the mines at Lens in which he worked as a boy. This fortune of a million francs was lost through the war and Georges returned the ring, after peace came, to rebuild it.

(The next story carried Carpentier to the championship of Europe.)

THIS IS HOW YOU SHAKE HANDS WITH NATION'S CHIEF

Handshaking Is Reduced to a Science by Livered White House Flunkies.

By Lora Kelley
Special to Post-Crescent
Washington. — Apparently every body who visits Washington finds it possible to arrange to break in on a White House reception and shake hands with President and Mrs. Harding.

Hardly an afternoon passes but what some delegation or other calls to "pay its respects." The record to date is 3200 handshakes in two hours—and the next day Mrs. Harding had her little finger bound with adhesive tape.

When your turn comes to form in line, you'll find the procedure simple enough. You'll be closely watched by Uncle Sam's secret service men, although you'd never know it—unless you tried to start something.

If the delegation is large you go in the east gate. Guards look at your badge or card. Inside the east entrance is a row of lockers where wraps are checked at occasions of big functions.

In line, two by two, you walk through the court to the White House proper. An attendant perspicaciously tries to keep the crowd in line.

"Don't crowd, ladies PLEASE," he implores.

While you progress slowly you get a beautiful view of the rear grounds through the French windows. You enter the lower halls, lined with red carpet, palms and policemen.

Busts on red velvet pedestals stand at the stairway leading to the main hall, but the attendant's "this way, please" forestalls your idea of lingering. You hear music—conversation. Then comes a whiff of roses and lilac.

You pass through the velvet ropes and out into the large marble-pillared reception hall. The Marine Band makes you forget your tired feet.

Livered flunkies dart to and fro keeping the line straight.

Finally you reach the Blue Room, with Chief Usher Hoover at the door way.

Beyond you catch a glimpse of the receiving party—the big president and his wife standing behind a blue velvet rope that reaches from door to door. Mrs. Harding usually is in a gray frock in the afternoon. And there is the inevitable black velvet neckband, with diamonds fore and aft.

Two aides in full dress, one from the army and one from the navy, and Miss Laura Harlan, Mrs. Harding's secretary, constitute the usual lineup. "Give your name only to the officer," whispers the chief usher as he announces single file formation.

The president greets you first. Then Mrs. Harding extends her hand and smiles. "I am glad to meet you," is the Harding salutation. They appear so sociable that you want to stop and chat.

But you don't.

You are gently shoved onward and on, and it's all over before you realize it. Yet—

That monologue, "How I Shook Hands With the President" goes great with the folks back home.

Delemater was a former service man and is believed to have been a shell shock victim.

HOG PRICES DROP WHEN FARMERS FLOOD MARKET

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Flooding of livestock markets over the country with light and medium weight hogs Friday caused the price of porkers to reach the lowest point since 1916.

After a week of heavy declines, hogs totobogged from 25 to 40 cents a hundred pounds in the chief markets.

Farmers, well stocked up with large supplies of corn they were unable to unload, have fed the surplus to hogs and rushed them to market. Reports from the yards here Friday showed that hog receipts increased 110,000 over the corresponding time for last week.

The grade of hogs is very good, it was reported. The huge influx is about spent, market men stated.

PETITION GOVERNOR TO PARDON GRACE LUSK

Waukesha, Wis.—Grace Lusk, principal figure in a sensational love triangle, was at the bedside of her father, Dr. A. L. Lusk, Friday, hoping she might stave off his death for several days.

Dr. Lusk, who is 74, was expected to expire momentarily. He believed his daughter had been freed from her 19 year prison term for the slaying of the wife of Dr. David Roberts, her "affinity."

Grace was allowed to visit her father by Governor John J. Blaine. Signatures to a petition for her pardon poured in Friday from all sections of Wisconsin.

CURIOSITY LED TO GREAT DISCOVERY

Madame Curie's Greatest Traits Are Curiosity and Pains-taking Care.

By Marian Hale
(Special to Post-Crescent)
New York.—"My mother said to me, 'Do American children really trade first teeth for dead cats?'" "Mon Dieu!" I cried, "what is it?" Irene Curie threw back her head and laughed.

"And what do you suppose she answered. I've been reading 'Tom Sawyer' and I want to know if the typical American child is wicked. Mother is so curious."

There Irene Curie struck the keynote of the impelling motive that has made Madame Marie Curie one of the world's foremost scientists—the discovery of the world's most precious substance, radium.

But the mother has more appreciation of science than of humor. Irene Curie is her mother's second self—a student working for her degree pursuing independent researches, aiding her mother in her laboratory.

The other daughter, Eve, visiting America with them is quite different. "Eve is giddy," says the simple, somber Irene. "But of that nothing and I am glad. Eve is unthinking and unsentimental. It is to protect people like Eve that people like mother and I must work in laboratories."

"But Eve is the light in our lives. Why should anyone want her to make tests all day instead of dancing?" You might as well wish that I danced instead of experimenting.

The Human Stage
"It is all in the great human drama, isn't it?" One lifts the curtain—and one drops it—and that is all. We are each appointed and we take our place, and if we are wise we do it with the utmost simplicity."

I referred to Madame Curie's great discovery and to her husband, who also was a scientist and associated with her in her researches.

"Mother, you know, thinks that men and women do better if they marry," she said. "She thinks they do better especially if they have the same interests and can work together. But, this is important, mother discovered radium alone."

I asked whether her mother opposed the use of radium for commercial purposes, believing it all should be conserved for scientific researches and uses.

"Mother thinks only of science, not of commerce," she said.

And to this further inquiry, "What does your mother think of America?" this was the reply:

"We haven't had time to think. An answer now would be superficial. And mother can't be a superficial thinker. If she were she never would have solved one of the great secrets of the world. Mother doesn't do things like that. When my mother thinks—well, she THINKS."

Use Soda

A pinch of soda added to very hard water aids in cooking fresh vegetables.

There should not be enough soda to injure the flavor of the vegetables. One fourth teaspoon of soda to a quart of water will counteract the hardening effect of hard water on vegetables and will not taste in the completed dish.

"Caliph Camel Talks"
"What prizes?" asked Caliph Camel, eyeing with suspicion the bags that Flippety-Flap took out of his shoes.

The prizes for the race," explained Flippety-Flap.

"Race?" questioned the camel, meanwhile wriggling his nostrils. You couldn't have smelled the contents of those big bags, my dear, and I couldn't and Nancy and Nick couldn't, but just the same old raggedy-patchy-looking camel could. He pretended he didn't care what was in those sacks, but if he didn't care, I'd just like to see what a camel looks like when he does care.

"Yes," nodded Flippety-Flap. "I said 'race.' I'm going to gather up all the stray camels I can find and have have a race. The first prize is this bag of dried beans. It goes to the winner, the winner being the camel who reaches the door of the big circus tent first."

"H'm," said Caliph Camel, reflectively. "Dried beans! That's a very nice prize."

"And this," said Flippety-Flap, kicking the second bag, "is to go to the second best runner. How fast can you run, Caliph?"

"About two miles an hour when I hurry," answered the camel. "I can't run a bit fast. I'd rather walk."

"Well, that makes no difference," said the fairyman. "A race is a race whether it is run, or flown, or swum, or walked. This prize is a bag of dried corn, the finest dried corn outside of a feed store."

"H'm," remarked Caliph Camel again. "Dried corn! That's a very nice prize! What's the other?" And he rolled his eye toward the third bag.

"Peas!" Flippety-Flap told him. "Dried! Sweet and nice, too! They are the third prize."

"That's a very, very nice prize, indeed," answered the camel, quite pleasantly. "In fact, they are all nice prizes. I shouldn't mind having them myself."

Pythian Knights PLAN A MEMORIAL

The Knight of Pythias will hold their annual memorial exercises for deceased members in Castle hall at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, June 5. A committee of three was appointed at the meeting Thursday evening to secure a speaker and make other necessary arrangements. The local lodge was instituted 25 years ago and the number of deaths since that time has averaged about one a year. The most recent death is that of Alva Hinckley. The Knights of Pythias conferred the rank of knight on three candidates Thursday evening. The ceremony was followed by a lunch and social. Delegations were present from Neenah and New London.

Third district—M. H. Small, principal; Eleanor Schneider, drawing and music; Vivian Morrow, domestic art; Walter Fox, manual training; Mary E. Grady, vice principal and mathematics; Josephine Eiting, English; Lella Flynn, geography and history; Winnie Bock, fifth grade; Rachel Cody, fourth grade; Constance Campbell, third grade; Katherine Featherston, second grade; Frances Patten, first grade; Hazel Meyer, kindergarten director.

Fourth district—Frank Younger, principal, and manual training; Margaret Austin, music; Adelaide Toleffson, drawing and domestic science; Georgia Hackworthy, vice principal and eighth grade; Irene Symons, seventh grade; Pearl Fellows, sixth grade; Florence Leppia, fourth grade; Grace Bixbie, third grade; Olga Meyers, second grade; Agnes Tracy, first grade; Genevieve Carroll, kindergarten director and Pearl Rumpf, assistant director.

New Hotel Entrance
A new entrance is being cut through the north wall of the Sherman house a few feet east of the present one which opens into the lobby. The new door opens into the writing room and will make it possible to enter the dining room without going through the lobby.

Solved the Problem

"I was almost distracted with stomach trouble, gas and colic attacks and didn't know what to do. I had tried everything I heard of, and the doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend told me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and it has solved the problem, as I can now eat anything and have no distress." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.—All Drug-gists. adv.

100 PAGES IN LAST NUMBER OF HIGH SCHOOL CLARION

Students of the high school were asked Friday to pay for the annual "Clarion" which is expected off the press by next Wednesday. The book will consist of over 100 pages and it will be considerably larger than the quarterly Clarions which were published during the year.

The space has been divided between literary efforts, jokes, snapshots and pictures of the faculty and the seniors. A fair sale is reported although it is not as brisk as the Clarion staff would like to see it.

LET US DO YOUR BAKING

YES, let us do your Baking for you this Summer. Why toil and trouble over a mere few pennies, when you can get the best Bread and Cakes, etc., ever made at prices which are practically no higher than the cost of home baking?

And it may seem strange that the women who are most expert and successful in baking their own Bread and other fine things are the first to come to us. The reason is obvious. They know good baked goods and they know that it comes from our shop.

Her Job!
BAKING at home when the thermometer registers in the eighties and nineties isn't the most pleasant task in the world. Why burden your wife with unnecessary work when prices have been reduced to such a low level that there is no money saved?

Women who know Good Bread will realize that it's a waste of time, money and energy to bake now, for they know well enough that they cannot equal OUR Bread in goodness or economy.

CHANGE TIME OF TRAIN TO CHICAGO

Night Train Cuts More Than an Hour From Its Ordinary Running Time.

Effective Sunday morning, Chicago and Northwestern passenger train No. 102 southbound to Chicago is to leave Appleton at 1:28 in the morning instead of 2:02. This change speeds up mail service and brings travelers into Chicago much earlier.

It is the plan of the railroad to speed up this train. It leaves Appleton 34 minutes earlier, but reaches Chicago at 6:52 instead of 7:15, a difference of 1 hour and 23 minutes. The train takes 49 minutes over its old schedule between here and Chicago.

"Mail from local business houses sent on this train will reach Chicago in time for the first delivery in the downtown district," said Postmaster

ATTENTION ROYAL NEIGHBORS

All members desirous of attending funeral of Mabel Mader will meet at the hall at 8:30 Saturday morning. Conveyances will be provided.

Gustave Keller, "We will close this mail at 1 o'clock here in the future." The change also will be a convenience to people having business to transact in Chicago. With daylight saving in operation, those who took the night train found themselves making their calls close to noon and often failed to find the men they sought. Now the traveler will be ready for his business by the middle of the morning.

Mail messengers who are familiar with Chicago mail distribution, and known as city sorters, are aboard this train and arrange the mail for Chicago city carriers while the train is en route.

CRIPPLE RIDES TRICYCLE TOWED BY AUTOMOBILE

J. W. Hubbard of Texas, who had both legs paralyzed in a railroad wreck in that state in 1893 while selling newspapers on a train, arrived here from Fond du Lac Thursday evening and left for Green Bay Friday morning. He gets about in a tricycle of his own design, pushed by a helper.

Mr. Hubbard and his machine, which is built like a motorcycle but has no propelling power, attract a great deal of attention. In the larger cities he usually blockades the sidewalks and part of the street. He is planning on carrying an advertising line and has several contracts under consideration.

In traveling from one city to another Mr. Hubbard checks his tricycle as baggage, but in coming here from Fond du Lac Thursday he was towed by an automobile, averaging 15 miles an hour.

NEIGHBORS PROFIT FROM BIG HOLSTEIN SALE HERE

Rich Holstein milk direct from the cow, and containing all its original cream, was tasted in quantities from a cupful to two or three quarts by about 40 children Thursday evening. Owners of the cows stabled at the Outagamie Equity exchange warehouse in readiness for the sale Friday milked their cows. Not knowing just what to do with the milk, they told the children around the barn to go home and get cups on wheels and they would be treated. The word spread quickly and it was not long before there was a long "milk line" waiting for the rich fluid.

TENNIS COURTS WILL BE FINISHED BY WEDNESDAY

Work on the Y. M. C. A. tennis court is progressing and if weather conditions are favorable, they will be completed by next Wednesday. A sum of $128 has been raised for fixing up the courts. The tennis club which was recently organized is not only for Y. M. C. A. members. The club is open to all tennis players in the city. Non-members will be given full tennis-court privileges and the use of shower-baths and locker-rooms until October 1, for $5.

Will "Say It With Flour" For Armenian Orphans

County's Grocery Stores Will Collect Funds for Carload of Flour.

A new and unique method of handling the starving orphans of Armenia has been adopted by the Outagamie county committee for Near East relief. Using a slogan, "Say it with flour," the committee is placing posters in every grocery store in the county to which are attached money containers in which coins are to be deposited for purchase of flour to be shipped to the relief centers.

These large posters in red, white and blue will be displayed with sacks of flour in conspicuous places in the stores. Brief printed statements describe the dire need for food and explain the "say it with flour" method. A slot is cut in the card at the top of the picture of a barrel. Here the coins are to be dropped, and the number in the box back of the card is shown through a transparent insert.

As soon as each grocer raises enough money to buy a barrel of flour he announces the fact to the committee. All flour will be purchased from a local mill at market prices; the grocer will be allowed his profit on the barrel for which his store secures funds, and the mill also will be allowed its usual price. The committee will wait until enough money is raised to pay for a carload, after which a car will be loaded and shipped to New York.

The flour is shipped to Constantinople, the relief disbursing center from where it is sent to the various food stations. Here bread is baked by the thousands of loaves and carefully distributed among the natives and children.

There are 111,000 homeless children in 229 orphanages, besides many in hospitals, who are dependent on the United States for food. Their parents either were massacred or died of starvation and exposure. Five cents will pay for enough bread to keep a child alive for a day, thus making even the smallest donations of consequence.

It is the hope of the local committee tee to obtain a carload of flour in record time. Each grocery store's contribution box will be watched to see which one buys the first barrel of flour. This method has been tried in other cities with marked success.
